Linda Rohrer Paige Award
for Service in Women’s and Gender Studies

Purpose
The Linda Rohrer Paige Award for Service in Women’s and Gender Studies honors the work of Georgia Southern University faculty member Dr. Linda Rohrer Paige, a tireless advocate for social change and a dedicated mentor for students working for gender equality and social justice. In the spirit of Dr. Paige’s commitment to bridging classroom and community, research and service, public life and personal conscience, the Linda Rohrer Paige Award for Service in Women’s and Gender Studies is awarded annually to the student whose work both in and out of the classroom demonstrates a commitment to a world in which men and women, of all races, religions, ethnicities, sexual orientations, and socio-economic classes, mutually value one another and work together for a peaceful civil society.

Eligibility
Any student currently enrolled at least part time and with a cumulative GPA of 3.0 is eligible for the award. Typically, Women’s Studies faculty working with activist students on campus encourage students to apply for the award, though faculty, staff, and other students may nominate candidates for the award. Commitment to the goals of the Women’s and Gender Studies Program can be demonstrated in a variety of ways, including service in campus and community organizations.

E-mail submissions are encouraged. E-mail applications to: lacostello@georgiasouthern.edu

If you nominate a student, please ask her/him to complete the attached form and send it, a letter of application, and a resume to:

Dr. Lisa A. Costello, Director, Women’s and Gender Studies Program, P.O. Box 8049
DEADLINE: 5:00 PM on February 1st each year
(Should the 1st fall on a weekend, the next working weekday will be the deadline.)
